

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

August 24, 2023

The Licence Inspectors' and Bylaw Officers' Association of BC (LIBOA) is proud to announce a name change to Local Government Compliance & Enforcement Association of BC (LGCEA).

LIBOA, a leading organization in the bylaw profession, is pleased to announce its official name change to the Local Government Compliance & Enforcement Association of BC. The decision to adopt the Local Government Compliance & Enforcement Association of BC as our new identity came as a natural progression, mirroring the profession's expanding scope and evolving responsibilities. By aligning our vision with the shifting landscape of the bylaw profession, we aim to elevate the standards of compliance and enforcement practices, foster rewarding partnerships with stakeholders, and empower our members with the tools and resources they need to succeed in their critical roles.

Over the years, the association has worked tirelessly to establish itself as a leading voice in the bylaw profession; diligently advocated on behalf of the profession, as well as providing educational training. With a rich history of 53 years, the association has continuously adapted to the changing landscape of the profession, providing invaluable resources and education, networking opportunities, and fostering collaboration among bylaw professionals.

Rebranding as the Local Government Compliance & Enforcement Association of BC is a result of a strategic vision where compliance is synonymous with collaboration, enforcement is rooted in empathy, and enhancing public safety is the key to building thriving communities.

"We are excited to unveil our new name, as it signifies our renewed commitment to constantly improving, innovating and adapting for the betterment of our members and the profession," said newly appointed President, Steffan Zamzow. "As we embrace the future, this name change allows us to better position ourselves as the leading voice in bylaw enforcement, facilitating knowledge exchange, fostering collaboration, and supporting our members' professional growth."

With a membership base of over 750 members, comprised of municipalities, regional districts, indigenous communities, solicitors, and other regulatory bodies. The association provides a wide range of resources, networking opportunities, and industry insights to its members, facilitating their professional growth and success.
